Clinical-Research Psychologist, Eating Disorders Program (EDP), Douglas University Institute in Mental Health

The Eating Disorders Program (EDP) at the Douglas University Institute offers comprehensive, ultra-specialized treatments for adults with eating disorders in the Anorexia or Bulimia Nervosa spectrum. The EDP is nationally and internationally recognized for its clinical services, research and teaching. The program also serves as a regional Eating Disorders Information Centre.

The EDP is presently seeking to fill a full-time position for a Clinical-Research Psychologist, with adjunctive academic appointment in the Psychiatry Department, McGill University.

Clinical Care: The Psychologist contributes to specialized psychotherapeutic activities in several spheres of program activity (including outpatient, day program and day hospital services). He/she performs clinical evaluations, offers psychotherapy, and also assumes responsibility for aspects of clinical programming.

Clinical Research: The Psychologist contributes to an ongoing program of clinical research and program evaluation, collaborates on existing projects and develops his/her own research. The successful candidate will be a “clinician-scientist”, motivated to attract research funds and to participate in the generation and dissemination of new knowledge.

Clinical Teaching: The Psychologist supervises psychology interns, and also contributes to a knowledge-transfer training program aimed at supporting the work of community clinicians working in non-specialized settings.

Given the clinical and teaching involvements associated with this position, ability to function effectively in French and English is necessary. A PhD in Psychology or a related field is required and the applicant must be license-eligible in the Province of Quebec, Canada.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, relevant reprints and 3 letters of recommendation before November 29th 2013 to:
